IRWA President's Message

Well, it is still difficult for me to realize that I am Chapter 11 President in an organization that has provided so much to me. So many before me have built this Chapter to be an example to others as to what a good chapter should look like.

Some have ask what is my main goal as incoming President. My main goal is to encourage and assist the Young Professionals. To come along side them so they can provide excellent right of way services and continue the professionalism that has been established thus far.

As a chapter we need to be ready for the next generation of right of way professionals. So, to those who are reading this article I ask you to step out and get involved. Attending a Chapter Board meeting is a good start. They are held during the lunch hour at the San Diego County Water Authority. You will find their address and meeting times in our Newsletter.

Please contact me should you have any questions. This chapter can only be as good as its members make it.

It's YOUR newsletter ... Be a part of it!

This month we are happy to present articles from Phil Flynn and Peggy Barnes.

If you want to contribute an article you've written, have photos (especially the San Diego skyline!), want to suggest a possible topic or project to be covered, have event or general announcements, job postings, regional or international updates, or are available to be interviewed for our "Meet Your Colleague" feature, please email newsletter editor Sarah Bottom at:

Rising Gas Prices and the Coming Oil Shortage

Phil Flynn, Senior Energy Analyst,
The Price Future Group and Fox Business Network Contributor

Permission to Republish - All Rights Reserved

It is common knowledge in the oil and gas industry prices on the future market can fluctuate wildly, either on the “headlines” or true fundamentals. We make our living not finding oil and gas reserves, but on the other end of the market where the market finds oil and gas reserves without the drill bit. For instance, the Energy Information Administration (EIA) reports a drop in the crude oil supply and higher refinery runs and gas futures go rip roaring, driving ethanol and crude along with it; then prices settle down. The cycle begins again either tomorrow or down the road. However, still lurking are the facts crude oil supplies have a problem.

We are longer a lone voice in the wilderness raising concerns about a coming crude supply crunch. The myth that shale can replace the loss of more traditional projects is dangerous even as the trade is intoxicated with the real terms record supply.

At the time of writing this article, Bloomberg News reported that, “The oil market is risking a supply crunch as producers cut spending on major projects to focus on short-term low-cost shale output in the United States, some of the top crude and products traders said.” They also point to a report by the International Energy Agency saying that, “After jumping 20 percent in the weeks following the decision by OPEC and 11 allies to curtail output to end a three-year surplus, prices have slipped as U.S. shale producers fill the gap.” Oil companies are reviving investment after a two-year rout, easing but not eliminating the risk of a future supply crunch, the International Energy Agency said earlier this month.

The reason, as we have watched the market and keeping an eye on reserve replacements worldwide, is the severe decline rate of the shale well. The average shale well produces on the high side maybe 3,000 barrels a day. So, “rule of thumb” says to keep an eye on what happens 18 months to 2 years later. Those monster wells may end up falling to 200 barrels a day. To keep production rising, drilling must continue. To keep up the pace is like a hamster on a wheel that must keep running to keep the lights on. More traditional projects which have a slower decline rate, some in the U.S., like California, have been producing for more than 100 years. (Continued on Page 4)

Rising Gas Prices and the Coming Oil Shortage

Still, these projects need to be replaced because the decline rates on conventional oil fields account for more than 90% of global production. When the U.S. energy industry cut back over a trillion dollar in capital expenditures, it in effect accelerated the decline rates. Decline rates will cut output by several million barrels per day each year in 2017 and 2018. Production is already falling in places like Asia and other markets will look to shale to try to replace it. The problem is we may need to find a lot more hamsters.

On top of that, the increase in crude supply, according to the EIA, was smaller than analysts predicted and even smaller if you consider a drop in the U.S. Strategic Petroleum Reserve supply the increase in supply looks smaller.

So natural gas prices surged as a result of a cold March, but that comes off a warm February. Speaking from an energy trader's perspective, if we get a hot 2017 summer even President Trump's relaxing of regulations might not be fast enough to save this market. If we get a cold 2017 summer then we will continue to kick the problem down the road. True crude oil supplies and reserves are out of sight out of mind.

One year ago crude oil was in the $30 per barrel region per barrel. Many said we were in a new era of low prices and we would not see $50 again. They were wrong. We predicted we were at a generational bottom that despite the wicked-ups and downs, will ultimately lead prices much higher. Many say this time is different because of shale. I say more fortunes have been lost believing that, "This time is different." The same prayer is recited each time we have a bust, "Lord, one more boom and we promise not to piss it away." They said in the nineties it was different because of computers keeping prices low forever, or it was different because of oil rigs could drill for oil keeping prices low forever.

Contrary to our profession on this side of the oil and gas business, oil is found with drill bits and not on Wall Street. The fundamentals of the lack of ample crude oil reserves in the long run eventually catches up with reality and oil prices will see higher prices – then the boom is off and running.

San Diego Education Opportunities: 2017

Would you like to be a part of Chapter 11's success?
Would you like to attend IRWA courses at no cost?
Chapter 11 is now accepting Course Coordinator applications.

Any time you have any questions, feedback to share, or would like more info about scheduled courses, OR about coordinating a class, contact Hugh Rowles, Education Chair, at (714) 316-4548 or by email at irwchapter11education@gmail.com

213 - Conflict Management - August 9, 2017 (1 day)

Instructor: Carol L. Brooks, SR/WA

This course presents specific methods for reaching collaborative solutions and minimizing negative aspects of conflict while maximizing benefits of resolving conflict. During this course, participants will learn how effective conflict management can open doors to healthier workplace relationships and more productive working relationships with both property owners as well as the general public.

209 - Negotiating Effectively with a Diverse Clientele - August 10-11, 2017 (2 days)

Instructor: Carol L. Brooks, SR/WA

This course explores the processes, dynamics, challenges and opportunities involved when negotiating with a diverse clientele, with the goal of maximizing each participant's personal negotiating power and effectiveness. Participants will increase their cultural awareness and sensitivity, gain awareness of different negotiation styles, learn intercultural communication skills for resolving conflicts and will be exposed to collaborative negotiation for reaching mutually satisfying agreements with people of diverse backgrounds. Participants will also gain a greater understanding of the causes and roots of misinterpretation, which can cause cultural collisions due to factors such as: the dynamics of communication, behavioral prescriptions, assumptions, perceptions, values, reasoning styles, attitudes, language, social relations, ethnocentrism, ambiguity, orientations and patterns, formality, emotion, different values, attitudes and reasoning styles and their relationships to communication and negotiation.

219 - Introduction to Presentation, Instruction and Facilitation - September 18-19, 2017 (2 days)

Instructor: Carol L. Brooks, SR/WA

This course provides participants with an understanding of presenting, instructing and facilitating; an opportunity to develop or enhance presentation, instruction and facilitation skills; personal and professional development, and a venue during which to assess personal skills and abilities before expressing an interest in becoming an IRWA Instructor or a Conference presenter. At the conclusion of the course, participants will have learned about, developed, and demonstrated presentation, instruction and facilitation techniques.

205 - Bargaining Negotiations - October 5-6, 2017 (2 days)

Instructor: Carol L. Brooks, SR/WA

This course provides an overview of the steps involved in bargaining negotiations, how to determine whether negotiations are progressing in a bargaining or problem-solving mode and the specific skills and attitudes required of successful bargainers.

Land of the Midnight Sun

Luggage in hand, I stepped from the Anchorage airport into daylight. I found the shuttle for my short jaunt to the hotel, all the while marveling at the scenery. It was 1:38 a.m.

Alaska is stunning in its raw natural beauty. Everywhere one looks is a new wonder: snow-capped mountains; clear blue bays and lakes; bountiful forests; abundant wildlife. To use a cliché, you have to see it to believe it.

I was proud to attend the 63rd Annual Education Conference as the Region 1 representative to the International Public Agency Committee (IPAC).

What is the IPAC, and How Does It Fit Into the Big Scheme of Things at IRWA?

Glad you asked!

The International Executive Committee (IEC) annually forms several committees and communities of practice to accomplish its goals and objectives. Chairs are appointed by the current IRWA president with the approval of the balance of the IEC.

Committees and Communities of Practice are divided into three areas: Service Committees (Ethics; Nominations & Elections; The Partnership for Infrastructure Professional Education; Credentialing Committee; and Finance); Industry Committees (Electric & Utilities; Public Agency; Oil & Gas Pipelines; Transportation); and Discipline Communities of Practice (Asset Management; Environment; Relocation; Surveying and Engineering; and Valuation).

The IPAC is an Industry Committee. Here is our mission statement:

“The mission of the International Public Agency Committee is to provide advice and assistance to the Association on matters related to management, operations and policies of International Public Agencies (IPAs). It shall cooperate with the International Liaison Committee in all interagency or legislative activities and shall keep the other industry committees informed.

The functions of this committee shall be as follows:

It shall study and report on concepts, practices, policies and procedures relating to the acquisition, management and disposition of real property, or interests in real property, for public use or benefit, and for whatever purpose.

It shall study and report on concepts, practices and procedures relating to the computerization of recordkeeping, asset management, interagency contracts and similar subjects of interest to IPAs.

It shall promote and encourage persons, schools and other organizations involved in IPA activities to participate with it in research and development of policies and procedures related to the effective function of LPAs.

It shall encourage chapters, acting through chapter IPA committees, to participate with it in this studies and in the performance of functions similar to its own on the local level.

It shall review the work and programs of the chapter IPA committee and shall make periodic reports to the International President Elect and the International Executive Vice President on committee activities at the chapter or international levels.”

Now for the business at hand.

The International Public Agency Committee held its annual meeting on Sunday morning, June 11, 2017 prior to the Opening Ceremony. Besides regular committee members, we were honored that Jerry Colburn, SR/WA, R/W-RAC, Incoming President, and Jeff Jones, SR/WA, R/W-NAC, R/W-RAC, R/W-URAC, IRWA President-Elect, and made time to join us.

In addition to regular committee business, we spent a significant amount of time talking about IPAC recruitment. That is where you come in.

How Does a Regular Member of the IRWA Become a Member of the IPAC?

One member shared her concern that there is a mysterious shroud regarding who can become a member of a committee or community of practice, as well as the process of doing so. The consensus among the IPAC members is that any member of the IRWA who wishes to join our committee as a member-at-large is welcomed and encouraged to do so. Call, e-mail or text any member of IPAC.

Why is Joining the IPAC (or Any Other Committee or Community of Practice) Important?

We need your expertise. Plain and simple.

What's In It For Me?

Four words: Personal and Professional Fulfillment. The IRWA works because of the members who support it through service to the organization and the membership. In addition to helping current members, you are helping to education and indoctrinate new right of way professionals, the lifeblood of our industry.

We as a committee are motivated to serve the IRWA by strengthening the interaction between the association and public agencies. We need your help.

Please do not hesitate to contact our committee chair Matt Harris, SR/WA mdharris@mdot.ms.gov, (601) 946-7459, or me at Peggy.Barnes@bbklaw.com, (951) 826-8357 (direct).

In closing, allow me to share one last point about Alaska: I would be willing to spend six months in the Land of the Midnight Sun, but not in six months of darkness.

Respectfully,

Peggy Barnes

Meet Your Colleague

This month we hear from member Diane Schooler, Independent Real Estate Appraiser with The Schooler Company. Diane has been in the ROW industry, and at her current position for 34 years. Here in her own words, is a personal sketch of our colleague, Diane:

What are your current job responsibilities?

As an independent fee appraiser I research, document, analyze and report the value of real property under a wide range of scenarios and value premises, on behalf of clients, up-to-and-including presentations at hearings and testimony in courts.

What has been your favorite project you have been involved with?

Over all these years, there have been many really enjoyable projects including the Levi warehouse in the San Diego ballpark district, a 332-easement water system in the Homeland-Green Acres area of Riverside County, a seven-house soils instability case in San Clemente (Orange County) and a three-way exchange project between U. S. Fish & Wildlife, California Fish & Wildlife, and the County of Los Angeles involving acreage in Diamond Bar, Wrightwood and Clear Lake. Diversity in projects and issues is one of the best things about being an appraiser.

What path did you take to arrive in the ROW industry?

In the early 80's I was a partner in a development consulting firm and one of our projects involved building a mile-long levee along the Santa Ana River at Weir Canyon jointly with Orange County ... and Orange County required a complex eminent domain valuation of the underlying land. Working with the appraisers on that project completely fascinated me, and at the end of the development project I joined Donahue & Co, a firm of six specialists in public agency work. .

What hobbies or activities do you enjoy outside of work?

Cooking, gardening, horseback riding, photography and travel anywhere!

What is your ideal vacation destination?

Anywhere I can ride a horse. Seriously, I have ridden in New Orleans, Reno, Virginia, Florida, North Carolina, Vancouver BC, Mexico (on the beach), New York City (in Central Park), and London (in Hyde Park). And in Paris, although I couldn't find a horse to ride, I went to the horse races to watch them run, lol.

If you could try another job for a day what would it be?

I'd love to be a Supreme Court justice and see things from that perspective.

Tell us about an experience you consider part of your 15 minutes of fame.

In 1988 I was president of the IRWA Orange County chapter, and the following year I was Chairman of the International Valuation Committee ... those two years were the best opportunity to work with others to effect change in our ROW field, and I am still grateful for the experience.

Is there any one question in particular that you would like to ask your ROW colleagues?

What information can I add to an appraisal report that will make it easier (1) to understand and (2) to present to a property owner?

Do you have any advice to newly hired ROW professionals?

Recognize that while your talents and skills are definitely specialized, at the same time they are just another link in an extensive process overall. When I fully realized that, it adjusted my focus and made my work much more useful to the others on "the team".

Chapter Luncheon

Mid-Coast Trolley Project
presented by Greg Gastelum, Principal Engineer, SANDAG.

“The Mid-Coast Trolley will extend Blue Line Trolley service from Santa Fe Depot in Downtown San Diego to the University City community, servicing major activity centers such as Old Town, UC San Diego, and Westfield UTC. Construction began in fall 2016 and service is anticipated to begin 2021.”
